(3-1-4) CSD 5505, Research Methods in College Student Affairs. This course is designed to introduce students to research methodology in the college student affairs profession. The course has two purposes:

1) to develop informed consumers about research and 2) to develop in students an appreciation of research and its application in college student affairs. Lab includes a series of statistical exercises.

04. 13-14, CSD 5710, Leadership and Administration in Higher Education, Revised Course Proposal; Richard Roberts presented the course. Council approved unanimously; Effective date – Fall 2013; (3-0-3) CSD 5710, Leadership and Administration in Higher Education. This course is designed to provide graduate students in college student affairs with a working knowledge of Leadership and Administration in Higher Education. The intent of the course will be to study leadership strategies in higher education with a focus on staff development, management techniques, administrative principles and evaluation strategies.

05. 13-15, CSD 5715, Individual and Group Intervention, Revised Course Proposal; Richard Roberts presented the course. Council approved unanimously; Effective date – Fall 2013; (3-0-3) CSD 5715, Individual and Group Intervention. This course is designed to provide graduate students in college student affairs with the knowledge and experiences that relate to providing counseling, advising support, direction, feedback, referral, and guidance to individuals and groups. Students will have the opportunity to study the various theorists and to apply their theories to facilitate positive change through reading, self-reflection, classroom exercises, role-plays, group processes and observation. In addition, students will learn and practice skills involved in helping relationships.

06. 13-16, CSD 5720, Student Development Theory I, Revised Course Proposal; Richard Roberts presented the course. Council approved unanimously; Effective date – Fall 2013; (3-0-3) CSD 5720, Student Development Theory I. This course is designed to provide graduate students in college student affairs with a working knowledge of the concepts that form the major and emerging theories of college student development. Students will have the opportunity to study the various theorists and to apply their theories to the field through class discussion, papers, and other special projects. In addition, a model for the development of reflective judgment will be considered along with its implications for professionals in the area of college student development. In addition, students will become familiar with a variety of uses for technology both in their coursework and in their profession.

07. 13-17, CSD 5725, Student Development Theory II, Contemporary Theories, New Course Proposal; Lou Hencken presented the course. Council approved unanimously; Effective date – Spring 2014; (3-0-3) CSD 5725, Student Development Theory II, Contemporary Theories. This advanced course in student development theory is designed to acquaint future student affairs professionals with a broader range of theory than the foundation theories studied in the introductory course. Special focus will be directed toward understanding the implications of these models for the policies and practices of education in general and student affairs in particular. The major purpose of the course is to provide students with an in-depth review of contemporary student development theories, an opportunity to apply, analyze, synthesize, and evaluate current and emerging theories in a seminar format in preparation for significant roles of leadership working with college students.

08. 13-18, EDF/CSD 5730, History and Philosophy of Higher Education, Revised Course Proposal; Dianne Timm presented the course. Council approved unanimously; Effective date – Spring 2014; (3-0-3) EDF/CSD 5730, History and Philosophy of Higher Education. This course is designed to acquaint students with the evolution of higher education primarily in the United States. Special attention will be given to forces that have shaped its development including the history of critical philosophical debates and issues about the nature and role of higher education.
