Fall 2025 - HON1290 – Honors Exploration Seminar Descriptions

Sociology of Fashion (CRN 99582)

Shaw

1-1:50 M

PEMB 1160

This course delves into the fascinating world of clothing and its profound impact on society. By examining the social, cultural, and historical contexts of fashion, students will gain a deeper understanding of the ways in which clothing shapes and reflects our identities, relationships, and cultural values.

Democracy & Merit (CRN 99583)

Anderson

10-10:50 W

COLE 2140

The ideas of Democracy and Merit are linked by the assumption that all decisions are valid due to a structure that allows all citizens to participate in the creation of our laws. Is this true? Does the structure of our government allow us to generate fair, competent rules that serve the common good? If not, can Democracy as a system help us to make a just society?

Rock Me Amadeus: The Genius Seminar (CRN 99584)

C. England

1-1:50 W

PEMB 1160

What is genius and where does creative inspiration come from? These are the two big questions at the heart of a seminar that opens with a reading of Peter Shaeffer's Amadeus. Students can expect to do some literary and film criticism and to examine some influential nonfiction accounts of the nature of inspiration. Along the way we will ask how ordinary mortals might extend their own creative capacities and experience more inspired thinking.

Attention (CRN 99585)

C. England

1-1:50 R

PEMB 1160

The father of modern psychology, William James, noted that what we pay attention to forms the content of our lives. We will investigate the nature of attention through psychology, philosophy and media studies. Students will also work through their own experiences of sustained attention and develop skills for writing observational prose. "Attention" is a thought-provoking seminar about big questions and their real life implications.

Evidence and Ethics (CRN 99586)

R. England

3-3:50 R

PEMB 1160

What should we believe? Are there reasonably generalizable criteria to help us answer this question? Are there beliefs or ways of thinking which are immoral? In this seminar we will explore philosophy, law, science and media theories as we explore how we use evidence and how we should use it in addressing complex questions and controversies.
