HOW IT WORKS

- Complete your Major and General Education requirements at Eastern in 3 years (90 credits); receive your B.A. from Eastern after successful completion of first year of law school at NIU
 - Majors that currently work at Eastern with the 3+3 include Political Science, Public Relations, Philosophy, and Journalism
 - Save a year's worth of time and tuition; normally, these two degrees take 7 years to complete.
- Application requirements include an electronic application form, a personal statement, an LSAT score reported through the Law School Admissions Council's Credit Assembly Service, a transcript, at least one letter of recommendation, and a letter from Eastern stating that the applicant has complied with the general education and major requirements. Applicants are also encouraged, though not required, to submit a résumé.

- Complete all general education requirements at Eastern, as well as all requirements for the major. Applicants must complete at least three-fourths of the credit hours required to complete their undergraduate degree, and must have no more than 30 credit hours remaining to be earned for their undergraduate degree.
- Both current Eastern undergraduate students and transfer students to Eastern are eligible to participate in the program.
